

The Corps' number one peacetime problem was flooding, such as (bottom row, far left): the 1904 floods at Halstead and on the Walnut River in southeastern Kansas, and (near left) Bartlesville's 1912 flood. Above, Tulsa World cartoons poked gentle fun at the political possibilities of the 1908 flood.